Jallikattu: TN back on track but cops face flak

Chennai

Life in Tamil Nadu was normal on Tuesday after a day of violence linked to Jallikattu, but police came under attack for breaking peaceful protests and for allegedly indulging in arson.

The National Human Rights Commission (NHRC) took suo motu cognizance of media reports that police attacked, arrested and damaged private property in order to disperse a large pro-Jallikattu gathering.

The NHRC issued notices to TN chief secretary, the DGP and Chennai's Commissioner of Police.

"The visuals on news channels show that police set on fire huts, autos, motorcycles, vegetable shops and other properties in Chennai. The bleeding students ran for their life," it said in a statement.

"Police even entered houses and started beating people indiscriminately. The police blocked the major routes leading to Marina Beach as well as Chennai city."

A video showing women and men in police uniform setting fire to vehicles and huts and damaging twowheelers here on Monday went viral, sending shockwaves across the state.

UP ATS busts

"We arrested 11 persons from Lucknow, Sitapur, Hardoi and New Delhi for operating international call racket by running parallel exchanges," IG ATS Asim Arun said, adding the action was taken on information by Jammu Kashmir Military intelligence that Army units were getting calls for spying from these exchanges.

An FIR in this regard has been registered in Gomti Nagar police station, he said, adding a large number of SIM cards, mobile phones and laptops used in the clandestine operations have been recovered.

Sources said the gang would gather information regarding vital Army installations, troop movements and deployments.
